Chapter 1 Understanding the Foundations of Business Communications

- 1) Communication is the process of
- A) transferring information and meaning.
  - B) listening actively.
  - C) writing messages.
  - D) speaking to others.
  - E) providing data to benefit the speaker.

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Communication is a two-way process that begins with the sender and ends when the receiver acquires information and meaning.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.1: Explain the importance of effective communication to your career and to the companies where you will work.

Skill: Concept

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Plan and prepare business messages

- 2) Which of the following must occur for communication to be considered successful?
- A) The audience must be aware a message is being constructed.
  - B) The message must be sent using more than one media method.
  - C) It must transfer or negotiate understanding.
  - D) The audience must agree with the goals of the message.
  - E) The message must offer a benefit to both the sender and the receiver.

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Communication is the process of transferring information and meaning between senders and receivers, using a variety of media forms. Communication can happen in a variety of ways, but there must be a transfer of understanding for the communication to be successful.

Understanding does not mean agreement.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.1: Explain the importance of effective communication to your career and to the companies where you will work.

Skill: Application

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

- 3) Which of the following developments is putting additional pressure on communication skills?
- A) Having great ideas
  - B) The need for managers to connect with staff and external business partners
  - C) Connecting with those who have a similar background
  - D) Utilizing established company networks
  - E) The changing nature of employment

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Ambition and great ideas aren't enough. You'll need to communicate with a wide variety of people if you want to succeed in business. The changing nature of employment is putting new pressure on communication skills, too. Many companies now supplement their permanent workforces with independent contractors who are brought on for a short period or even just a single project.

Difficulty: Easy

LO: 1.1: Explain the importance of effective communication to your career and to the companies where you will work.

Skill: Concept

AACSB: Written and oral communication

- A) Offering compelling arguments and recommendations
- B) Clarifying expectations and responsibilities
- C) Presenting information in an efficient manner
- D) Providing practical information
- E) Giving vague impressions

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Show your readers precisely how they will benefit by responding the way you want them to respond to your message. This is done by offering compelling, persuasive arguments and recommendations.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.1: Explain the importance of effective communication to your career and to the companies where you will work.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

8) Which of these is a reason why it's important to learn how to communicate efficiently?

- A) Efficient messages are cheaper to transmit.
- B) Efficient messages don't need to convey as many facts.
- C) Concise messages don't need to be personalized.
- D) Short messages are easier to write.
- E) Concise messages show respect for people's time.

Answer: E

Explanation: E) To make your communication efforts as effective as possible, focus on making them practical, factual, concise, clear, and persuasive. Concise messages show respect for people's time, and they increase the chances of a positive response.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.1: Explain the importance of effective communication to your career and to the companies where you will work.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

- A) The lateral communication network
- B) A diagonal communication network
- C) The informal communication network
- D) A horizontal communication network
- E) The audience-centered communication network

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Informal communication takes place naturally when employees interact, both on the job and in social settings. Some of it takes place when the formal network doesn't provide information that employees want. The informal communication network is located wherever workers congregate, which could be hallways, drinking fountains, or lunchrooms. Informal communication also takes place on telephones and through email and social networks.

33) Discuss the range of communication tasks that employers expect you to be competent at.

Answer: Today's employers expect you to be competent at a range of communication tasks that reflect the value of communication. First, employers expect you to be able to acquire, process, and share information based on the information needs of the audience, and use that information ethically. Second, employers expect you to use communication to foster positive working relationships by practicing listening, etiquette, respectful conflict resolution, and communication with those of diverse backgrounds. Third, employers expect you to act responsibly and professionally on social media and other public venues, and to follow accepted standards of grammar, spelling and quality in writing and speaking. Fourth, employers expect efficiency in using tools they provide.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.2: Explain what it means to communicate as a professional in a business context.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

34) Discuss how the "you" attitude reinforces an audience-centered approach to communication.
Answer: An audience-centered approach involves understanding and respecting the members of your audience and making every effort to get your message across in a way that is meaningful to them. This approach is also known as adopting the "you" attitude, where you is the person receiving the message, in contrast to messages that are about me as the sender. Learn as much as possible about the beliefs, education, status, communication style, and personal and professional concerns of your readers and listeners. Relating to the needs of others is a key part of emotional intelligence, the ability to read other people's emotions accurately and to manage one's own emotions in productive ways. The more you know about the people you're communicating with, the easier it will be to focus on their needs—which, in turn, will make it easier for them to hear your message, understand it, and respond positively.

- A) Identifying the motivation for the idea
- B) Transmitting the message through a channel
- C) Understanding how the audience will respond to the message
- D) Encoding the idea as a message
- E) Producing the message in a transmittable medium

Answer: D

Explanation: D) When someone puts an idea into a message—the "container" for an idea—he or she is encoding it, or expressing it in words or images.

Difficulty: Easy

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

36) Which of the following is one of the goals of the sender when thinking about how an audience might respond to the message?

- A) The receiver will provide verbal feedback.
- B) The receiver will be able to encode the message.
- C) The message can be transmitted through several channels.
- D) Technology will be used to improve the downward communication process.
- E) The receiver will be motivated to respond.

Answer: E

Explanation: E) By crafting messages in ways that show the benefits of responding, senders can increase the chances that recipients will respond in positive ways. Whether a receiver responds as the sender hopes depends on the receiver remembering the message long enough to act on it, being able to act on it, and being motivated to respond.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

- A) To ensure the verbal and nonverbal messages are consistent
- B) To help the audience remember the message
- C) To evaluate the effectiveness of the message
- D) To determine if the audience is motivated to respond
- E) To ensure the message was decoded correctly

Answer: C

Explanation: C) In addition to responding (or not responding) to the message, audience members may give feedback that helps the sender evaluate the effectiveness of the communication effort.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

39) Which of the following is a type of communication barrier that could result from multitasking?

- A) Channel breakdowns
- B) Digital fluency
- C) Critical thinking
- D) Distractions
- E) Lateral communication

Answer: D

Explanation: D) The common habit of multitasking—attempting more than one task at a time—is practically guaranteed to create communication distractions. Multitasking dramatically increases the workload on your brain because you're forcing it to constantly switch between sets of rules and contexts, which require it to reorient each time.

Difficulty: Easy

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

41) Which of the following best describes the ability to focus on a subset of incoming stimuli while ignoring others?

- A) Selective attention
- B) Distraction
- C) Channel breakdown
- D) Multitasking
- E) Communication barriers

Answer: A

Explanation: A) One of the mind's defenses against the barrage of messages and noise is selective attention, which is focusing on a subset of the incoming stimuli or information sources and ignoring others.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

42) Which of the following is one way to help the audience notice your message?

- A) Address the sender's needs
- B) Send the message using multiple channels
- C) Address the audience's needs
- D) Use unfamiliar and unique images
- E) Tell the audience why they should care

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Make sure your messages speak to the audience by clearly addressing their wants and needs—not yours. People are inclined to notice messages that relate to their individual concerns.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Application

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

44) In the communication process model, _____ describes the step in which the audience extracts the idea from a message.

- A) processing
- B) encoding
- C) translating
- D) decoding
- E) transmitting

Answer: D

Explanation: D) A received message doesn't "mean" anything until the recipient decodes it and assigns meaning to it, and there is no guarantee the receiver will assign the same meaning the sender intended. Decoding is the act of interpreting the message, of changing it from a set of symbols to a form that the human brain can understand.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

45) How can a writer increase the chance that a message will be remembered and retrieved by the receiver?

- A) Make the message interactive and conversational
- B) Be sensitive to the audience's wants and needs
- C) Use social media to share the message
- D) Invite the audience to participate in the conversation
- E) Develop the message using a broadcasting mindset

Answer: B

Explanation: B) In general, people find it easier to remember and retrieve information that is important to them personally or professionally. Consequently, by communicating in ways that are sensitive to your audience's wants and needs, you greatly increase the chance that your messages will be remembered and retrieved.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

Answer: C

Explanation: C) The social communication model of business communication is interactive, conversational, and usually open to all who wish to participate.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Concept

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Explain how to create messages for different electronic media

47) Which of the following is one of the ways businesses utilize the social communication model?

- A) Transmitting fixed messages about a brand
- B) Limiting access to stakeholders
- C) Incorporating a "we talk, you listen" model
- D) Giving customers a voice they did not have in the past
- E) Allowing information to flow from the top of the organization

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Audience members are no longer passive recipients of messages but active participants in a conversation. Social media have given customers and other stakeholders a voice they did not have in the past.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

48) Which of the following is a disadvantage of the social communication model?

- A) Information flows in one direction
- B) User needs cannot be addressed quickly
- C) Excessive costs
- D) The incorporation of hybrid approaches
- E) Potential for information overload

Answer: E

Explanation: E) With the social model of communication, there are more communication channels to monitor, more work is needed to separate valuable information from noise, there is a greater risk of the spread of false information, and there is a greater threat of information overload.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Information technology

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

49) A potential disadvantage of the social communication model is that any stakeholder can shape public perceptions in significant and unanticipated ways.

Answer: TRUE

Explanation: Today, more stakeholders have a say in the conversation via social media, and they can use the power of the crowd to shape public perceptions in significant ways, such as arranging boycotts of companies whose policies they disagree with or influencing where and how companies advertise. Messages can be amplified, distorted, or misused in ways the original sender never envisioned.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Critical Thinking

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

50) If a message is fact-based, it will not be interpreted based on culture or personal beliefs.

Answer: FALSE

Explanation: Assigning meaning through decoding is a highly personal process influenced by culture, individual experience, learning and thinking styles, ego, hopes, fears, beliefs, and even temporary moods.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Application

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

51) Filters, which are human or technological interventions between the sender and the receiver, can block or distort messages.

Answer: TRUE

Explanation: Messages can be blocked or distorted by filters, which are any human or technological interventions between the send and the receiver. Filtering can be both intentional (such as automatically filing incoming messages based on sender or content) or unintentional (such as an overly aggressive spam filter that blocks legitimate emails).

Difficulty: Moderate

Skill: Concept

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

52) The only thing a person needs to receive a message is technical compatibility with the person who is sending the message.

Answer: FALSE

Explanation: Before someone can receive a message, he or she must sense it, select it, and then perceive it as a message.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Concept

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

53) The more shared experiences (personal, professional, and cultural) the sender has with an audience, the more likely it is that the audience will understand the intended meaning of the message.

Answer: TRUE

Explanation: In general, the more experiences you share with another person, the more likely you are to share your perceptions of the world and therefore arrive at the same meanings for a given message. Careful audience analysis helps you understand how much of this overlap you have with your readers or listeners.

Difficulty: Moderate

54) Describe the eight steps in the basic communication model.

Answer:

1. The sender has an idea. Whether a communication effort will ultimately be effective depends on the nature of the idea and the motivation for sending it.
2. The sender encodes the idea as a message. When someone puts an idea into a message, he or she is encoding it, or expressing it in words or images.
3. The sender produces the message in a transmittable medium. With the appropriate message to express an idea, the sender now needs a communication medium to present that message to the intended audience.
4. The sender transmits the message through a channel. The channel is the system used to deliver the message (such as a mobile phone).
5. The audience receives the message. If the channel functions properly, the message reaches its intended audience. However, mere arrival at the destination is no guarantee that the message will be noticed or understood correctly.
6. The audience decodes the message. After a message is received, the receiver needs to extract the idea from the message, a step known as decoding.
7. The audience responds to the message. Whether a receiver responds as the sender hopes depends on the receiver (a) remembering the message long enough to act on it, (b) being able to act on it, and (c) being motivated to respond.
8. The audience provides feedback to the sender. In addition to responding (or not responding) to the message, audience members may give feedback that helps the sender evaluate the effectiveness of the communication effort.

55) Discuss two disadvantages of the social communication model.

Answer: Now that more stakeholders have a say in the conversation via social media, they can use the megaphone power of the crowd to shape public perceptions in significant ways, such as arranging boycotts of companies whose policies they disagree with or influencing where and how companies advertise. A second potential disadvantage of the social model is complexity. Companies and individuals have access to more information than ever before, which is both positive and negative. On the negative side, there are more communication channels to monitor, more work is needed to separate valuable information from noise, there is a greater risk of the spread of false information, and there is a greater threat of information overload.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.3: Contrast the conventional communication process model with the social communication model.

Skill: Synthesis

AACSB: Written and oral communication

56) Describe four common types of communication barriers.

Answer: Four common types of communication barriers are noise and distractions, competing messages, filters, and channel breakdowns. Noise and distractions can be both physical and emotional and are especially common due to the widespread habit of multitasking. Competing messages make it difficult to gain and keep your audience's attention and can result in information overload, which makes it difficult to distinguish between useful and useless information and increases workplace stress. Messages can be blocked or distorted by filters, which are any human and/or technological interventions between the sender and the receiver. Filtering can be intentional or unintentional. Finally, channel breakdowns occur when the channel you select fails to deliver your message at all.

Skill: Concept

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

57) Information overload is

- A) a condition caused by receiving more information than can be effectively processed.
- B) a false condition concocted by workers who fear technology and its capabilities.
- C) a condition that affects only those who work in high-tech jobs.
- D) a condition where information tools can waste as much time as they save.
- E) an accepted aspect of mobile technology.

Answer: A

Explanation: A) The overuse or misuse of communication technology can lead to information overload, in which people receive more information than they can effectively process. Information overload makes it difficult to discriminate between useful and useless information, lowers productivity, and amplifies employee stress both on the job and at home. Information overload has nothing to do with fear of technology. Anyone who uses a computer, a smart phone, or other advanced gadget is susceptible to information overload.

LO: 1.4: Identify five major benefits of business communication technology and three major innovations that are reshaping the practice of communication.

Skill: Synthesis

AACSB: Written and oral communication

Learning Outcome: Discuss the challenges and importance of business communications

58) Which of the following is an example of a potential benefit that technology brings to business communication?

- A) People take more time in crafting clear and persuasive messages.
- B) Barriers can be created to limit participation in the process.
- C) Information overload is reduced through information filtering.
- D) Creating and consuming messages can require less time and effort.
- E) Complex sets of data need less explanation.

Answer: D

Explanation: D) There are five key areas of benefits technology brings to the communication process. One of those is that technology makes communication more efficient by reducing the time and effort needed to create, transmit, and consume messages.

59) Which of the following describes how to use technology effectively in the communication process?

- A) As an aid to making communication more efficient
- B) As a replacement for face-to-face communication
- C) As a tool to replace essential skills
- D) As a source of data to minimize human error
- E) A tool to fill the gaps in a skill set

Answer: A

Explanation: A) Technology makes communication more efficient by reducing the time and effort needed to create, transmit, and consume messages.

- 60) Which of the following best describes the information technology paradox?
- A) The generation that created technology is least likely to use it correctly.
  - B) Information tools can waste as much time as they save.
  - C) The more an organization spends on technology the more profitable it will be.
  - D) The more technology is used to communicate, the stronger personal relationships become.
  - E) Technology is now the most efficient method in managing text-heavy communications.

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, and other technologies are key parts of what has been called the information technology paradox, in which information tools can waste as much time as they save.

- 61) Which of the following can improve real-time collaboration within an organization?

- A) Neural networks
- B) Networks running from a fixed location
- C) Machine learning
- D) Computer vision
- E) Internal social networks

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Many companies now have private, internal social networks that are restricted to employees and selected business partners. These private systems are often enhanced with shared file access, group messaging, and real-time collaboration capabilities for brainstorming, reviewing and revising documents and virtual meetings.

62) Which of the following is a potential challenge while using mobile communication technologies?

- A) Businesses have many more apps for collaboration and problem diagnosis.
- B) Employers expect increased productivity and availability.
- C) Reading and writing on small screens is more difficult.
- D) Smartphones are more private than computers.
- E) Intelligent communication technology can replace the need for face-to-face communication.

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Documents that are easy to read on paper or on large screens can become quite difficult to read on a smartphone and the more difficult the reading experience the more likely that readers will misinterpret the message or simply stop reading.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.4: Identify five major benefits of business communication technology and three major innovations that are reshaping the practice of communication.

63) Which of the following best describes how intelligent communication technology (ICT) is used in contemporary communication?

- A) Using artificial intelligence to determine the most practical outcomes to a problem
- B) Using artificial intelligence to enhance the communication experience
- C) The ability to allow artificial intelligence to modify your writing and design experience
- D) The ability to use artificial intelligence to make devices smaller and more portable
- E) The ability to use artificial intelligence to access a company's information networks

Answer: B

Explanation: B) ICT uses artificial intelligence to enhance the communication experience. Forms of AI are used extensively in business and business communication and firms such as Amazon, Apple, Facebook, and Google already rely on AI to deliver their services.

64) Which of the following AI methods emulates information processing in the brain?

- A) Neural networks
- B) Strong AI
- C) Narrow AI
- D) Processors
- E) Deep learning

Answer: A

Explanation: A) An AI method involving neural networks emulates the function of neurons in the brain, and makes AI much more powerful.

- A) Increased security controls
- B) More ethical communication
- C) Standardized writing
- D) Minimized distractions
- E) Enhanced productivity

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Mobile tools can enhance productivity and collaboration by making it easier for employees to stay connected and giving them access to information and work tasks during forced gaps in the workday or while traveling.

- A) increase expertise in an organization.
- B) limit crisis communication.
- C) reduce time needed for research.
- D) improve decision making and problem solving.
- E) decrease corporate security issues.

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Mobile connectivity can accelerate decision making and problem solving by putting the right information in the hands of the right people at the right time.

- A) Computer vision
- B) Machine learning
- C) Natural language processing
- D) Narrow AI
- E) Deep learning

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Natural language processing gives computers the ability to understand language in the often-unpredictable, or "natural", ways humans speak and write and to manipulate language in useful ways. This converts speech to text, analyzing text to extract intended meaning, and generates written or oral output.

- 68) Which of these is one of the potential benefits of communication technology?
- A) Removing the need to carefully craft messages which will be sent on mobile devices
  - B) Assisting in the decision-making process by guiding communicators through complex sets of data
  - C) Controlling operating costs through the use of nontraditional work models
  - D) Eliminating the need for traditional standards of grammar, punctuation, and spelling when writing messages
  - E) Minimizing device size and increasing portability

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Technology brings a wide variety of benefits to business communications, including assisting communicators with decision-making by guiding them through complex sets of data and improving research tools so information can be applied.

74) Which of the following is another name for the accepted principles of right and wrong that govern decision making and action within a culture?

- A) Leadership
- B) Transparency
- C) Ethics
- D) "You" attitude
- E) Emotional intelligence

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Ethics are the accepted principles of right and wrong that govern decision making and action within a culture. Ethical behavior is a companywide concern, but because communication efforts are the public face of a company, they are subjected to particularly rigorous scrutiny from regulators, legislators, investors, consumer groups, environmental groups, labor organizations, and anyone else affected by business activities.

75) What is the concept of communicating openly to give all participants access to the information they need to accurately process the messages they receive?

- A) Stealth marketing
- B) Ethical dilemma
- C) Promotional communication
- D) Ethical auditing
- E) Transparency

Answer: E

Explanation: E) The widespread adoption of social media has increased the attention given to the issue of transparency, which in this context refers to a sense of openness and giving all participants in a conversation access to the information they need to accurately process the messages they are receiving.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.5: Define ethics, explain the difference between an ethical dilemma and an ethical lapse, and list five guidelines for making ethical communication choices.

76) Which of the following represents a decision scenario in which the alternatives are not clear-cut, such as when someone is forced to choose between two options that are both ethical and valid?

- A) An ethical dilemma
- B) Transparency
- C) An ethical lapse
- D) Stealth marketing
- E) An ethics audit

Answer: A

Explanation: A) An ethical dilemma involves choosing among alternatives that aren't clear-cut. Perhaps two conflicting alternatives are both ethical and valid, or perhaps the alternatives lie somewhere in the gray area between clearly right and clearly wrong.

Difficulty: Moderate

LO: 1.5: Define ethics, explain the difference between an ethical dilemma and an ethical lapse, and list five guidelines for making ethical communication choices.

77) Which of the following can help employees determine the right course of action to take in an ethical dilemma?

- A) Intelligent communication technology
- B) Promotional communication
- C) A code of ethics
- D) Transparency
- E) Empowerment

Answer: C

Explanation: C) Many companies establish an explicit ethics policy by using a written code of ethics to help employees determine what is acceptable. A code is often part of a larger program of employee training and communication channels that allow employees to ask questions and report instances of questionable ethics.

Difficulty: Moderate

78) Why are bloggers legally required to let readers know if companies have compensated them for product reviews?

- A) To prevent plagiarizing information provided by bloggers
- B) To ensure no copyright laws were violated
- C) To maintain the privacy needs of the blogger
- D) To promote transparency and ethics in social media reviews
- E) To increase the instances of ethical dilemmas between the blogger and the organization

Answer: D

Explanation: D) The widespread adoption of social media has increased the attention given to the issue of transparency, which in this context refers to a sense of openness and giving all participants in a conversation access to the information they need to accurately process the messages they are receiving. These laws address such issues as product reviews written by bloggers who receive compensation from the companies involved, false and deceptive advertising, misleading or inaccurate labels on product packages, and bait-and-switch tactics.

- A) Contracts
- B) Stealth marketing
- C) Ethics audits
- D) Transparency
- E) Intellectual property

Answer: E

Explanation: E) In an age when instant global connectivity makes copying and retransmitting electronic files effortless, the protection of intellectual property has become a widespread concern. Intellectual property (IP) includes patents, copyrighted materials, trade secrets, and even Internet domain names

- A) Native advertising
- B) Transparency
- C) Compensation for reviews
- D) Intellectual property rights
- E) Libel

Answer: B

Explanation: B) Governments around the world are taking steps to help ensure that consumers and other parties know who is behind the information they receive, particularly when it appears online. This is done through transparency requirements and laws.

82) Which of the following refers to advertising material designed to look like regular news stories or articles?

- A) Transparency
- B) Stealth marketing
- C) Deep fakes
- D) Distortion
- E) Native advertising

Answer: E

Explanation: E) Native advertising, also known as sponsored content, is advertising material that is designed to look like regular news stories, articles, or social media posts. This must be labeled as sponsored content if it is likely to mislead consumers into thinking it is anything other than an ad.

- A) Legal protection for creative products
- B) Using deceptive sound and video files as proof
- C) Flexibility in the use of others' creative work
- D) Presenting someone else's words or creative product as your own
- E) Creating material that is designed to look like a regular news story or ad

Answer: D

Explanation: D) Plagiarism is presenting someone else's words or other creative products as your own. Plagiarism can be illegal if it violates a copyright, which is a legal form of protection for the originator of the content.

87) Discuss three areas of unethical communications.

Answer: Unethical communication can take several forms: withholding information, distorting information, and plagiarizing. Plagiarism is presenting someone else's words or other creative product as your own. Information is essential if your audience needs it to make an intelligent, objective decision. Withholding information is unethical and could also be illegal in certain circumstances. The third type of unethical communication is distorting information, which is distorting or hiding the true intent of someone else's words.

89) Discuss plagiarism and how to ensure it does not occur.

Answer: Plagiarism is presenting someone else's words or other creative product as your own. Plagiarism can be illegal if it violates a copyright which is a form of legal protection for the originators of creative content. Plagiarism standards and copyright law does not mean you can never use someone else's work. However, you must use it ethically and legally, including properly documenting your sources, clearly labeling anyone else's words and images as theirs, and using only minor portions, such as brief quotations.
